Farmers' Request 87 1/2 Cents Bushel May Materialize

Maintenance of Present Price Would Protect Growers — Some Sections Urge Increase to $1.05

OTTAWA, July 25.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his colleagues are faced with a decision that will affect all Canada—the fixing of a minimum price at which western farmers may sell their wheat to the Canadian wheat board.

Prosperity of the prairie provinces—when depend upon the government's action. If demands of grower organizations are met the government will fix a price of 87 1/2 cents the present rate or more and the farmers will be ensured a measure of prosperity.

But if that price is fixed and the ultimate disposal of the wheat is left to the board it is at a loss to the taxpayers of all Canada will be called upon to pay the loss.

Minister J. G. Gardiner is hurrying back to Ottawa from a tour of the wheat fields to consult with his colleagues. He told the reporters he expected the ministerial decision would be made at a meeting of the government Tuesday when the regular weekly cabinet meeting is held.

Throughout the west there have been meetings and resolutions of the government to fix a minimum price no lower than the 87 1/2 cent level which has been maintained since the wheat board was established by the Bennett government in 1935.

Alberta Team in Third Place With 303, Four Strokes Behind

LONDON HUNT AND COUNTRY CLUB, London, Ont.—July 25.—The British Columbia team, led by B. C. Leding, was nearest rival today when the first 18 holes of play for the Winnipeg-British Columbia team championship were completed.

The Pacific coast four-man team had aggregate of 299, more than two strokes behind the Alberta team, which had 303.

Manitoba was next with 310, but was defeated by the Ontario team, which had 315.

Herridge's Crusade for Monetary Changes Termined Futile—No Difference Seen Between Grits and Tories.

Close to a million dollars might have been saved if the federal government had obeyed his suggestion of two years ago and nationalized the Bank of Canada then, J. S. Woodsworth, M.P. for Winnipeg North Centre and national leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, said Sunday afternoon in an address at the Ukrainian Institute.

Here he said the national convention of the C.C.F. in the Manitoba Temple Thursday and Friday, M.P. Woodsworth stressed that the session "was most barren and all the government did was to talk and talk."

Democracy today, he charged, was degenerating into "government of the people" by the profiteers and big interests.

In contrast to this was the C.C.F. ideal, "for a Socialized government, and by the people, for the people."

Recalling how reform legislation had been thwarted by the senate, M.P. Woodsworth stressed that in a democracy there is no room for profiteers.

Though the Bank of Canada now was in theory publicly controlled, he said, it was in fact controlled by the same interests.

BRACKEN ASKS LOWERING OF TARIFF BARS

Manitoba Wants to Buy Cars, Farm Implements at U.S. Prices

OTTAWA, July 25.—Manitoba wants to buy motor cars, farm implements and other manufactured articles at prices similar to those enjoyed by United States consumers, and the provincial government is urging the federal government to lower the tariff barriers.

Premier James Bracken, of Manitoba, laid before Prime Minister Mackenzie King a memorial recommending that the trade negotiations now proceeding at Washington offer an opportunity for lowering tariffs and obtaining in return a wider market for Canadian primary products in that country.

LOWER PRODUCTION COSTS
Reduction in tariffs would make the implements of production cheaper, lower the cost of production and open the way to wider markets for the goods produced in the brief arid, its contents were made public today by the Manitoba government.

In presenting his arguments, Mr. Bracken said he was recommending what he understood from the federal Liberal leader's pre-election platform to be the policy of the party, and that the Manitoba government had supported the Liberal's policy because of that platform.

A further recommendation was that the Canadian government seek cooperation of United States authorities in efforts to solve the problem of high prices charged for farm implements. Monopolistic operations coupled with excessive

RAIN BREAKS HEAT SPELL IN SOUTH ALBERTA

LETHBRIDGE, July 25.—Breaking a heat spell continued by 100-degree readings on Friday in the south of Alberta, rain over the week-end brought assurance of good crops from Taber and Calgary to the foothills. It was reported that the rain fell over more than an inch, 21 hours continuous rain being reported from Cardston district. The storm passed off between Macleod and Calgary. Only light showers fell east of Taber and along the Foremost branch, but cool, steady weather was reported from the southeastern Alberta country this morning.

Crops are now filling rapidly and some cutting of wheat will start about August 8. It will, however, be August 20 before cutting is general.

FALL ELECTION STILL SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION

Many Believe Government Will Go to Country If Trade Pact Signed

OTTAWA, July 25.—Prospects for a Dominion federal election this fall continue to be a subject for much speculation in Ottawa, despite the intimation from Prime Minister Mackenzie King during the provincial relief demonstration in a recent interview that he saw no reason for an election this year.

Many here think that should the new trade agreement between Canada and United States be signed in the near future, the government at Ottawa would go to the country on it. They argue it will be such a far-reaching agreement that it will cause heated debates in parliament and the government will be forced to move on it.

One of the difficulties in debating a trade agreement is that one nation's signature to the treaty can mean a change after it is signed without the consent of the other party to the contract and the result is it is to be accepted or rejected without amendments. So the government is forced to make a compromise to meet divergent views within Canada.

Political opponents point to the fate of the reciprocity agreement of 1923, which was rejected by the House of Commons, and to the fact that the government was forced to withdraw it.

They argue that when that agreement was first announced, it was general opinion that it would be accepted.

At Fair Groups Quickly Ended

It took less than one hour to conclude the all-day strike organized by the relief demonstration participants at the Edmonton fair grounds Saturday.

The men complained of working conditions and wages paid them by the exhibition board, and when asked by police officers to leave the grounds, they refused to do so.

The men were quickly dispersed by police officers, and were sent to the exhibition grounds by the relief demonstration participants.

Mr. Abbott said it was his understanding that the men's labor during fair week was to be credited against their relief debt to the provincial government.

The "Pegged" Price

If the suggestion that wheat may be pegged at 70 cents a bushel was sent out from Ottawa as a "feeler," the response from the part of the Dominion most vitally concerned has been prompt, fairly general, and practically unanimous. Wherever opinion has been expressed in the West, and it has been expressed by a good many organizations, private individuals and newspapers, the 70-cent proposal is condemned and a minimum of 87½ cents demanded. For the reason this price would not the farmer on the average 60 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern, and that is taken to be about the average cost of producing wheat.

Westerners have no delusion that subsidizing the production of wheat, or anything else, is a costless expedient. But since we are living in a widely subsidized economy—manufacturers, transportation systems and wages are being protected by tariffs, officially fixed rates and minimum wage laws—there seems no reason why the farmer should be left to fight for existence lone-handed. And no real advantage to other classes, for general prosperity cannot be built on a basis of unprofitable agriculture.

Efficiency Before Cost

"In times like these" no city of 90,000 people scattered over an area as large as that of Edmonton can expect to have a thoroughly efficient police force unless it is equipped with all useful mechanical appliances. The city cannot afford to hire enough policemen to patrol the streets, as is done in congested sections—and only in congested sections—of larger cities. The best protection for life and property it must make the best possible use of the force it is able to maintain.

"Prover" cars, in radio communication with headquarters, are essential if the force is to be given a fair chance to cope with law-breakers over the 43 square miles of territory outside city limits. The test which the department is now making of two-way radio equipment for the police cars is a matter of real interest and importance to house-holders and businessmen alike. It is of more concern to those who reside or carry on business in outer and less densely populated areas than those whose homes or shops are located in the downtown section—where patrolmen are on the streets day and night.

Successive city councils have discussed the installation of police radio equipment and decided they didn't have the money. The present council should take the view that saving a few thousand dollars at the cost of crippling the police force is poor business.

A Question of Strategy

Alberta's political eruption produced something of an earthquake in London Social Credit circles when Mr. Hargrave's "Green Shirt" brigade clashed with Major Douglas' Secretariat at a reception to Mr. Powell, which seems to have developed into a free-for-all fist fight, with no decision.

The "Green Shirts" are a militant branch and approve using political methods to put Social Credit into effect. The Major aims to keep clear of politics and go on preaching his "gospel" until it comes into automatic operation by force of unanimous public opinion. This approach was the line of cleavage along which the two ragged—and it still being fought with broadsides of barbed words.

On the subject the Major makes one of his typical cryptic comments: "Endeavouring to bring about Social Credit by party politics is like hanging a dark horse against all odds in the open air. The dark horse, and allowing the book-maker to lay the handicaps." Alberta Social Credit, it is to be inferred, made a tactical mistake and defeated their purpose when they entered candidates in the political race and won eight-ninths of the seats in the provincial legislature.

Still, it is to be observed that in a democratic country a cause that does not get into politics does not get anywhere. Whatever the Major's picturesque language may mean, it seems clear that the backers of a dark horse can't win if the horse doesn't run.

Contacts Not Wanted

The Japanese war leaders, who are in control at Tokyo, have cancelled the Olympic meet, scheduled to be held in that country in 1940. Mingling with the foreign athletes, they explain, might modify the Japanese youth's nationalism. He might even get tinged with an international complex.

That would destroy his usefulness for the purposes of the war-makers. They do not want young Japan to get any foolish western notion that he should be content to "live and let live". They want him to do to others, as they may order, what they are now making him do to the Chinese. To fit into their scheme he must be willing to kill when he is told, regardless of cause, age or sex. He would be less enthusiastic about it if he should come to know and like people who are not of his own race.

In all of which, it should in justice be said, the Japanese war-leaders are not different from war-makers in general. They are typical of the class wherever found.

Since Japan will bar Olympics, the instinctive thing for the rest of the world would be to bar Japanese athletes from Olympic meets held in other countries. But that would be a mistake. It would be helping the war-makers to attain their end. And besides it would give the young Japanese some cause to think the athletes of other countries were afraid to compete with him, or that other nations regard the Japanese as Japan's masters. If sport can be used to cultivate friendliness on the part of young Japan toward the youth of other lands, it would be a mistake to throw away the opportunity by shutting Japanese contenders out of meets held abroad.

United States army and navy engineers are establishing airplane bases on a couple of small islands in the Pacific, which are so situated as to be useful stopping places for Trans-Pacific Clippers. It will be interesting in some quarters to note that the islands are also being converted into naval bases.

The death of Mr. Sydney B. Woods leaves a gap in the front rank of Alberta lawyers. Mr. Woods was deputy attorney general during the first four years of the province's history, was very widely known and highly respected. He will be missed by members of his profession in every province in the Dominion, and by thousands of Edmonton people who have long known him as a familiar figure and an outstanding citizen.

Old Country Letter

By J. E. NORCROSS

LONDON, Eng.—(By Mail)—It is further to be hoped that Parliament will be able to suppress that long-criticized clause of the Official Secrets Act which permits the authorities to extort from a private person, under threat of imprisonment, the source of any information which has reached him, and which they may choose to describe as an official secret.

Thus the Daily Mail states a much-to-be-desired outcome of the Parliamentary crisis which has occupied the House of Commons for a large part of the week.

The "private persons" the Daily Mail has particularly in mind are, doubtless, reporters and journalists. The House of Commons may be invited to provide for members from anything of that sort now that it has become aware the Official Secrets Act may be used against them in a manner which certainly was not contemplated when it was before Parliament.

The very possibility, indeed, that a member of the Commons could be brought within the scope of the act was denied only a few weeks ago. Mr. Dingle Foot, member for Dundee, told the House that, while a member could not be called to account by any outside authority for what he had said in the House, he could be imprisoned under the act if he refused to tell the authorities where he had got the information on which his statements were based.

Relying on Parliamentary privilege established for hundreds of years, Mr. Foot's fellow-members were confident that nothing of the sort could possibly happen.

Yet, last Monday, Mr. Sandys, Conservative member for Norwich, had to appeal to the Speaker because the chief law officer of the Crown had told him that if he refused to say where he got certain information about anti-aircraft guns he rendered himself liable to two years' imprisonment.

Mr. Sandys said that he had written to Mr. Horre-Bellia, Secretary for War, enclosing a draft of a Parliamentary question he proposed to ask, unless the Secretary could deny the accuracy of certain figures which he submitted also.

So his surprise the Attorney General had sent for him and had told him that his question showed a knowledge of matters covered by the Official Secrets Act and that he was under a legal obligation to reveal the sources of his information.

And if I refuse? Mr. Sandys had asked. He might render himself liable to two years' imprisonment, he had been told.

The Attorney General, Sir Donald Somervell, gave his version of the facts which were so seriously at issue. He said that Mr. Sandys, the Speaker commented on the importance of the issue raised and advised Mr. Sandys to give notice of motion so that the question could be fully discussed.

Mr. Sandys did so and there the matter stood for the time being. The story of official blundering, however, was to have another and even more startling chapter added to it.

When something goes wrong, headache seems to be one of the first warning signals. The abnormal facts may be physical or emotional in origin. In other words, headache may result when there is something wrong with the physical or "pinhead" part of you, or in the "unpinhead" part, or that part of you which you do not feel with the fingers. An example of a physical cause is constipation, while an example of an emotional cause is violent anger.

Because of the wide range of possible physical causes, it is not always easy to determine quickly what is the exact cause in any given case. The headache which you do not feel with the fingers, the explanation of why this symptom is so very common. I venture to say that headache is the most common of all disease symptoms and certainly you would have had it finding a person who could truthfully say he never had a headache in his life.

Headache may be located in different parts of the head—it may be on the back, the top, the side, or the front above the eyes—known as the forehead. The ache itself may vary all the way from a sharp stinging pain to a dull aching sensation. The severe type of headache is made worse by bright light, loud noise, or even by movement.

In discussing headache it is most convenient to consider the various types separately, thus there is the toxic type of headache which is due to auto-intoxication and to constipation, and there is the bilious type which is frequently develops in the patient predisposed to attacks of biliousness, which is caused by a sluggish bow and in addition the type of headache due to an upset stomach.

Sometimes headache is the result of eye-strain, being induced by an uncorrected eye defect and disappearing as soon as the patient gets the benefit of properly fitted glasses. During the summer, many people report that staying in the direct sun for long periods of time causes headache, but even in these cases when the sun seems to be the direct cause there is usually some underlying disturbance of the digestive tract which may also be a factor.

The ordinary headache is due to an upset in the digestive tract and may be the result of stomach trouble or of constipation. This complaint is the bilious type which is frequently yield very readily to a plain warm enema, followed by a rest of one-half hour in a darkened room. Even the headache due to eye-strain or tension or by playing up too late at night will also generally vanish with this simple treatment.

When headache is due to high or low blood pressure or to anemia, then it will probably not yield so readily.

Thanks To China
Had Japan, flushed with an instantaneous victory against China, turned her arms against the Russian maritime provinces, the world would have been in no position to embroil herself in European affairs. She would have been forced, against her will, to withdraw into isolation while the scheme for European peace was advanced from the base of the Berlin-Rome axis; and finally would have found herself assaulted by them from the east when the east was by the members of the anti-Communist pact, who make no secret of their proximate ambitions. This theory is by no means wanton. It accords accurately with the forecast and prophecies made by well informed observers in more than one part of the world; and if that theory is well based, the gallant resistance of China means that the aggressors' time-table has been thrown into disarray, and the world has at least a short breathing-space in which some rest for the sake of principles upon which permanent peace is based may perhaps be possible.

A Strange Thrill

A horse hitted a broad run away on a shaded street in Fort Rouge in the summer peace of yesterday morning. The placid existence of the suburban section of the city was convulsed by the rampaging outrage. Nothing else mattered. One of the world's most modern planes flew over the street, but was unnoticed by the horse. A street of the city was a standstill on Corydon Avenue, but could not move till the horse galloped by or was stopped carrying.

A horse sweeping the shaded street skipped to the boulevard as the horse swept in the city. Other men starting for their offices in the city shouted "Whoa" to the horse, but got him to stop. The horse was not so valiantly into the street ahead of the horse, but nimbly hopped back as the bread was lured by them. A few automobiles parked on the street were crushed as the wide horse wore by them.

On the next block a police sergeant took to the street and side body to the middle of the street. He waved his arms like a Dutch mill turns its wings, but his setting-up exercises were misunderstood by the horse. Either the horse was not used to the new-fangled police sergeant side-stepped the horse, for the sergeant was on the sidewalk while the horse was still running away.

The horse galloped on, probably thinking he was being encouraged by the shouting at the curb. He was running at a gallop, and he was being chased. The big mass was expected to come at the end of the street, where the horse would have to turn, but nothing happened except that the van went round on one wheel.

$30,000,000 Is Available To Municipalities

FAIR WAGE, 8 HOUR DAY IS WORK SCALE

Employees on Projects Must Be Residents of Canada

OTTAWA, July 25.—Fair wages and eight-hour day will be the rule on all municipal self-liquidating projects undertaken with the federal government loans under the Municipal Improvement Assistance Act, passed at the recent session of parliament.

All contracts under which municipalities obtain loans will contain the fair wage and eight-hour day clause inserted in contracts for domestic public works. The municipalities will also be required to guarantee by person other than a resident of Canada shall be employed on such works and that there shall be no favoritism or discrimination.

LOW INTEREST
The act authorizes the dominion government to lend up to $30,000,000 to municipalities at two per cent interest to enable them to finance such self-liquidating projects as water works, hydro plants, gas plants and other improvements where the projects are urgently needed and will assist in the relief of unemployment.

Each application for a loan must be accompanied by a description of the project, a statement of the capital cost, evidence to establish its self-liquidating character, statements as to the need and the way in which it will relieve unemployment.

In the contract the municipality must agree to keep all money advanced in a separate account and to use it only on the project covered in the contract. It must keep proper accounts of the expenditure which will be open to the inspection of the department's representative.

GUARANTEE AGAINST DEFAULT
The municipality also agrees to deposit a debenture guaranteeing the principal sum and bearing interest at two per cent. In the event of any default on payments under the contract the minister of

Holy Land Torn By Violence

The Holy Land is in the throes of the worst Jewish-Arab outbreak in its recent history, with riots such as the one shown above, producing more than 300 casualties in a week. The picture pictured here occurred in Tel Aviv. Jewish and British police and soldiers are seen welding batons and clubs rifled against a screaming mob with women prominent among the fighters. The outbreak of inter-racial violence was touched off by the recent execution of a young Jew, Solomon Ben Yisroel, hanged for ambushing an Arab bus.

PADLOCK LAW TEST CASE TO START JUL 28

Second Quebec Communist Jailed for Interfering With Police

QUEBEC, July 25.—Provincial police announced last night F. X. Lesard, 46-year-old alleged Communist, accused of breaking into his down-town flat that authorities sealed Wednesday under the "padlock law," was arrested Saturday before Judge Hughes Fortier-Fortier on a charge of "willfully breaking a provincial law."

Arrested with Lesard—working in his carpenter shop when his wife and two children were evicted and official seals of Quebec province affixed to doors of the six-room flat—was Henri Beaulieu, on a charge of complicity after the fact. Preliminary hearing in both cases was held July 28 and bail for Lesard set at $1,200.

Police said Beaulieu was charged with aiding the escape of two men who fled Friday night after an unsuccessful attempt to impound police guards in their automobile.

Shortly before Lesard had pulled down a street door and climbed three flights of stairs to his former home—legally closed for a year, because of the carpenter's alleged communist activities.

The men escaped after police detained with the Lesard home, discovered doors of their ear were being opened with wire by the pair, who had engaged the officers in conversation.

STETTLER TRUSTEES HOLD ANNUAL MEET

Annual convention of Stettler Association School Trustees' Association was held here July 18 with about 60 people present. The address of welcome was given by Dr. A. Staples on behalf of the trustees.

Minutes of 1937 were read by Mr. C. W. Clark, followed by the report of the secretary, Dr. C. A. Staples. Dr. Staples outlined strenuously to the trustees the need of following the new methods in teaching and drilling away from the old rigid methods of the past.

Officers elected for 1938-39 were: Mr. H. Halder, Stettler, president; Mr. A. W. Halder, vice-president; A. B. Clark, Stettler, was chosen as delegate to the next provincial conference.

PEACE RIVER Public Building Plans On Display

Plans and specifications are on display in the local post-office for the much needed public building that has been the political football since 1935. The plans indicate a substantial fireproof structure and its location is now believed to be on the east side of Main street, south of the Royal bank and north of the local bank. The building will be a post office.

Defeats Purcell In Straight Sets

ROGER WATERS, tall, blonde Glenora Tennis Club star, became the monarch of Edmonton tennisdom for 1933 when on his home-club courts on Sunday afternoon he defeated, in the final round of the men's open singles in the

Edmonton and District Tennis Association tournament, the defending titleholder, Andrew "Shorts" Purcell, in three straight sets at 6-1, 6-1, 6-4. ✱

The final brackets were filled some days ago but owing to the exhibition, the final was postponed until Sunday. A large crowd of fans sat in on the past-

Since he won the title last year, Purcell has had little or no tournament competition.

Purcell has had none of the tournament competition. He did not play in the Glenora Invitation tournament last fall and has taken no part in the Hudson's Bay Challenge trophy competition this year. Con-

Mercury Reaches End Of Her Flight

The English pick-up plane Mercury, which had been flown aloft atop the mother plane Maia at Foyens, Ireland, is pictured from the air at Fort Washington, L.I., her objective after the transatlantic flight.

In the inset are left, Donald C. T. Bennett, pilot of the Mercury, and Albert J. Cooper, radio man. The spectacular flight was made without mishap.

30 KILLED AS PLANE STRIKES GRANDSTAND

South American President Escapes Injury When Airship Crashes

BUENOS AIRES, July 25.—More than 30 persons were killed and 150 injured when a military plane crashed into a crowd during a military review at the inauguration of the camp in Mar del Plata Sunday.

The plane piloted by Lt. Alvaro was doing aerobatic stunts 90 feet from the ground when it attempted to pass between the grandstand occupied by President Alfonso Saenz and President-elect Eduardo Saenz and the diplomatic stand.

A tip of the wing hit the stand occupied by diplomats and then struck the presidential stand.

The widely cheering crowd crashed and cut through bystanders like a scythe.

The crowd ran in every direction but some were powerless to escape. Some of those in the path of the propellers were decapitated and their heads thrown a great distance.

No harm came to either President Lopez or Saenz as the burning plane hit but a few yards from where they were standing.

QUEEN MARIE OF RUMANIA LAID TO REST

Bereavement Reconciles Two Sons, King Carol and Nicholas

BUCHAREST, July 25.—Rumania paid its last respects Sunday to Dowager Queen Marie, whose body was placed in the Royal Rumanian tomb at Kureta de Agregh.

Thousands gathered about the white stone royal palace in Bucharest while four metropolitan and 50 bishops of the Rumanian Orthodox church, in gold and silver ceremonial robes, conducted services in the church.

Only one of hundreds of wreaths accompanied the body. It bore the name of the queen's two sons, King Carol and Nicholas.

Seldom Rumanians said, had their land been so united as it was in mourning the death of the queen who devoted her energetic life to being "Rumania's ambassador to the world."

Saturday night her body lay in the throne room of the Bucharest palace and the royal family itself held a wake. The throne was covered with red roses. Before it rested the coffin, draped with a banner bearing the Rumanian and national colors.

At 8 a.m. Carol and Nicholas, their personal and political differences reconciled by their common grief, Crown Prince Michael and Prince Frederick Von Hohenzollern, the king's uncle, released royal officers and stood guard until the midnight funeral services.

The fifth and final match, scheduled to be played in London Aug. 26, will be fought to a finish, but even if it is not, the series will be decided by the two overseas cricketers who will play the Ashes, mythical emblem of world cricket supremacy.

Australia won the Ashes in England in 1934 and retained them in the campaign in Australia in 1937.

BENNETT AND MANION PART GOOD FRIENDS

Muted Tory Rift Dispelled As Notables Shake Hands

OTTAWA, July 25.—It was "good-by R. B." and "good luck Ben" when Conservative Leader Manion and Dr. Hon. R. B. Bennett shook hands in the parliament buildings Saturday. Dr. Manion left Sunday night for Fort William and Mr. Bennett will leave early this week for Calgary.

The hearty handshake was taken to indicate the new national leader and the former leader of the Conservatives were firm friends. If there had been any estrangement between them, the shake had evidently entirely cleared the situation.

Many reports had been heard around Ottawa that there was friction between the two former colleagues and the grounds given for such reports were that Mr. Bennett had not been at the last Conservative convention when Dr. Manion was elected leader and that Dr. Bennett had continued to occupy the opposition leader's offices in the parliament building.

Friends of both men insisted there was no cause for friction on either count. Mr. Bennett had stayed away from the convention elections, they declare, so that he would be absolutely neutral in the selection of his successor. He has retained the offices in the parliament building because Mr. Manion is not yet a member of parliament.

Mr. Bennett and Dr. Manion spent an hour together Saturday. It is understood they had exchanged letters previously covering the change of leadership.
